OXFORD COUNTY IN 1812

BY CHARLES E. WATERMAN
Article 10

Colonel William Ryerson's command was the most important in the militia of Oxford County in 1812. It was really a brigade. Not only did he have the customary number of infantry companies under him, but he had a cavalry battalion attached to the regiment under Major Greenwood. The rolls of whose troop were given with the Hebron soldiers and also two battalions of artillery, one located in the eastern side of the county under the command of Major Alden Blossom, and the other on the western side of the county, under the command of Major James Steele. The rolls below are of the two artillery units in Oxford County serving in Blossom's command:

Staff:
Major—Alden Blossom, Turner.
Adjutant—Hiram Bradford, Turner.
Quartermaster—James Perry, Fack.
Paris Battery:
Captain—Jonathan Bemis.
Sergeant—David Bemis, Amos Amesty, Jonathan Bemis, James Bemis.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS

Finally Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Anderson

Rangley, Maine.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound" helped me greatly for bearing down pains in the sides and back, headaches and tired feelings. I suffered for two years and it seemed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next. After reading letters from others who had taken the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it and now I can do all kinds of work, sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I live on a farm and have five in the family so am busy most of the time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and hope my letter will help some one to take your medicine."

Mrs. WALTER E. ANDERSON, Box 270, Rangley, Maine.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 out of every 100 of the replies say, "yes," and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Little Travelogues

By BLANCHE GILL

THE PIGEON PATIENT

Indianapolis—the capital of Indiana—is one of the chief railway centers of the United States. The focus of the city is the circular Monument place from which radiate four wide avenues. In the center of this place rises an imposing monument to the soldiers and sailors who fell in the Civil war.

In a hospital in this city we knew Luella, a dear little girl who, after an operation, had to remain there several weeks. The morning after the surgeons had operated on her and she was back in her room, they took pity on a poor pigeon on the window sill that had a badly frozen toe, and was a quanted the operating room windows up there on a water daily. The pigeon's pet of the doctors and nurses who fed and gave it water daily. They brought frozen toe was much swollen and must have given it great pain. They brought the bird in, gave it an anesthetic and cut off the toe and bandaged up the foot. The pigeon was a good patient under the care of the doctors and nurses and its foot got well in a short time.

Luella, in her bed on another floor, was always interested in the bird-patient that was operated on the same morning. The nurses would take the pigeon to see her often. It was very tame and they became good friends, and the little girl named it "Pigeon."

After some weeks of care Luella was well again and was taken back to her home at a well developed cumulo-nimbus, or thunderstorm, cloud may, in favorable circumstances, be seen when more than 100 miles away.

Ingenuity Displayed by Spider Repairing Web

On the porch of a mountain cottage in Pennsylvania a tiny spider was seen to repair her web in a very interesting manner. The web, except for the threads that spread radially from the center, was torn and weather-beaten; the spokes, so to speak, were intact and tightly stretched. Starting at the center, the spider ran outward along a radial thread, sweeping it clear of the cross threads, breaking them and collecting the fragments until she had a tiny bundle. That she would roll up with her claws and toss out into the air to drop to the ground as waste material. Apparently the gummy points of intersection of threads she softened quickly by fluid from the mouth, for she stripped the spoke perfectly clean. (The observer found later that he could not strip a spoke of cross threads by sliding a split twig along it.)

Returning to the center along the stripped spoke, the spider would free the adjoining spoke, pausing now and then to throw away her tiny ball of waste. Having reduced her web to spokes only, she proceeded to replace the part of the web that she had cleared away, spinning anew the threads that were to stretch from spoke to spoke.

Such a striking example of economy of time, material and labor was a delight to see.—Youth's Companion.

Labor That Calls for

Much Physical Effort

A well-known writer once said that oyster dredging on the American coast was the hardest work in the world. The two dredges were winding in by hand, and that everlasting winding, balanced on a swaying deck, was wicked work. The moment one dredge was aboard the oysters had to be "culled," and the whole eight men of the crew were working against time from dawn till dark.

The dock laborer's job is another which entails tremendous physical effort. A steamer's time is money, and when cargo is being discharged not one moment must be wasted by any of those engaged.

The amount of work that can be done in one day is almost incredible. An inquest on a dock laborer who died suddenly on a wharf was held some time ago at which it was stated that on the day of his death he had unloaded no fewer than 36,000 wood paving blocks.

Sight of Cats and Owls

The belief that cats and owls can see in the dark is a popular fallacy. The iris of a cat's eye is capable of being dilated so as to admit more or less light, thus enabling the cat to see much better in the dusk than can humans, but in absolute darkness all animals are as helpless as any human being.

The feature which adapts certain eyes for use in the dark is the retina which is composed of two sets of structures, the so-called rods and cones. The rods are apparently affected by radiation slightly before the cones, and hence some creatures, including owls, whose eyes possess a large proportion of rods, are better suited for seeing in a faint light.

Uncomplimentary

The county inspector was paying his monthly visit to the village school. He examined the children in reading and general knowledge, as was his custom, and was very pleased with the answers he received. After the last question he rose to his feet and, looking slowly around on the upturned faces, remarked genially: "I wish I was a little boy at school again." He allowed a few moments for this to sink in and then added: "Do you know why I wish that?" For a moment or two there was silence, and then a childish voice from the back of the room was heard to say: "Cas you've forgot all you ever knowed."—Atlanta Journal.

Storm Clouds' Visibility

The weather bureau says that the distance at which storm clouds are visible to the naked eye varies greatly with one's position, and the kind of clouds. If a person is in an open flat country—and the clouds are of the cumulus or layer type—he may not see them more than 30 or 40 miles away, and even not half so far if the air tends to be misty or hazy. On the other hand, when the air is quite clear a well developed cumulo-nimbus, or thunderstorm, cloud may, in favorable circumstances, be seen when more than 100 miles away.

Australians Know Snow

Snow falls in southeastern Australia during the winter months, and occasionally lies on the ground as far north as Melbourne and Sydney. On the Victorian and southern New South Wales, the snowfall is very heavy. Forests are practically buried in snow and on the plateaus of northeastern Victoria the ground is sometimes covered to the depth of several feet from May to September. This also occurs on the highlands of Tasmania, although there are no mountains bearing perpetual snowcaps in either Australia or Tasmania.

Great Naval Station

Malta has an area of 113 square miles and a population of 224,880. This includes the neighboring islands of Gozo and Comino. Malta was annexed to Great Britain, with the free will of the Maltese, in 1814 by the treaty of Paris. It has an elected legislature, but there are certain reserved matters, such as war, treaties, foreign trade, etc., which are dealt with by the governor and executive council. Exports include potatoes and other vegetables, oranges, cumins seed, goats and sheep, cotton goods and stone. The distance from Malta to New York is about 4,800 miles. This group of islands is situated in the Mediterranean sea, 60 miles from Sicily, 140 miles from the European mainland and 180 miles from Africa. It has a magnificent natural harbor at Valetta and an ideal situation as a coaling station and center of Mediterranean commerce. It is England's premier naval station in that sea.

River "Rafts" Nuisances

One of the most remarkable of the Mississippi rafts began forming in the Atchafalaya, a lower arm of the river, in 1778. By 1818 it had become 10 miles long, about eight feet deep, and had become a solid enough to support a growth of trees, some of which were 60 feet in height. Finally the state of Louisiana had to remove the obstruction at great expense, the work occupying United States government has since that time removed a raft which blocked the channel of the Red river for 45 miles.

Demonstration Sought

A tramp called at the house of a blunt farmer and asked for food and old clothes. "You appear to be a stout, hearty-looking man," said the farmer; "what do you do for a living?" "Why, not much," replied the fellow, "except travel about from one place to another." "ha!" rejoined the farmer; "can you travel pretty well?" "Oh, yes," returned the beggar, "I'm pretty good at that." "Well, then," said the farmer, "let's see you travel."

Fortified

One Sunday morning a southern pastor noticed a new attendant at the service. When the meeting was over the preacher made it his business to speak to the newcomer. "Rastus," he said, "this is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time. I'm mighty glad to see you here." "I had to come," replied Rastus, "I needs strengthenin'. I've got a job whitewashin' a chicken coop and built in a fence around a watermelon patch."

The Only Way

"I was only acting the part of peace-maker." "You were," said the man senseless. "Prisoner—I did. There was no other way to get peace."

Small Graveyards Located in Paris

(By F. A. Briggs)

The following is a continuation of the story of the yard at Paris Hill, in the rear of the Columbia Parish place. The first installment appeared last week.

Cyrus Perkins, son of Cornelius, was born in Woodstock; married March 14, 1839, Harriet, daughter of Sebra, Dunham and settled, first, on the Dr. Kidbridge farm and afterwards removed to Paris Hill where he died. He had a family of one son and three daughters. His stone bears the inscription:

In Memory of
Cyrus Perkins
Born Jan. 14, 1812
Died Apr. 18, 1891
AE. 79 yrs.

Faithful last than been O father:
All thy tasks been truly done:
Now in heaven a home awaits thee,
And thy rest is but begun.

Rebbed in pure and spotless garments,
He at God's right hand doth stand,
His dear and wonderful crown
In that bright and better land.

Harriet Perkins, daughter of Sebra, Dunham, married Cyrus Perkins; after his death she married his brother, Charles Perkins, May 29, 1838. Her stone bears the inscription:

In Memory of
Harriet M. Perkins
Born Feb. 28, 1810
Died Aug. 28, 1890
AE. 80 yrs.

I shine in the light of God,
His likeness stamps my brow,
Through the valley of the shadow,
My feet have trod
A path in glory now.

Do I forget? Ah, no,
For memory's sacred chain
Shall bind my heart to the hearts below,
Till we meet and touch again.

Sebra Dunham, son of Ebenezer, married Melitah, daughter of William Russell. He served in Captain Uriah Ripley's company in the War of 1812. He had a family of one son and two daughters. His stone bears the inscription:

NORTH WATERFORD

Rice Neighborhood
Geo. H. Rice attended A. L. Walker's Field Day at South Paris on Wednesday, May 3, 1890; married Mrs. C. A. Hersey and baby William called on Miss Elvira Hamlin, Friday afternoon. Miss Hamlin has been sick some time but is slowly gaining. She showed them the beautiful Bible that she won as a premium through the Christian Herald by sending in the number of members who belonged to the North Waterford church who voted last fall. This was the largest vote of any church in Maine whose returns were sent in. This Bible is to be given to the Sweden church as they have no large Bible.
